PRINCETON, Ind., July 28. Grim inspectors probed the depths of King's coal mine today seeking to learn the cause of an explosion which killed 13 miners yesterday afternoon.

It was the second serious explosion in eight months at King's. The previous blast, last November, caused no deaths but was followed by extensive fires which closed the mine for more than two months.

The mine had been closed again last week because of water seepage. It had been inspected Sunday by State mine inspectors and had been reopened only vesterday.

Two men were injured critically in yesterday's blast, and a rescue worker also was in a hospital after being overcome by gas. Condition of the rescue worker, George (Red) Cornelius, was not serious. Two other miners were given first aid for slight injuries.

Members of One Loading Unit. The dead and injured were members of a single loading unit which was on the lowest level of Indiana's deepest shaft mine, 433 feet underground and 3 miles east of the Coroner C. C. Cooper said all the bodies were badly mutilated and burned. All were brought out within three hours after the explosion. Workers from other parts of the mine and from nearby shafts moved quickly to the rescue. The United States Bureau of Mines office at Vincennes sent a rescue crew. Ammove the bodies.
